

Digital File Naming Guide

Media Development incorporates a file structure, naming and numbering system to streamline and improve the efficiency and consistency of our wayside exhibit digital files. This system enables different users to quickly recognize file types and locate the correct documents for revision and file transfer. The structure also allows seamless transfer to database, repository and archival systems. The following will instruct you on how to incorporate this system into your workflow.

Folder Structure

The system is set up into two parts; folder structure, and file naming and numbering.

The folder structure is designed to separate different types of information and file types into their own unique folders. The most commonly used folder types have already been created in the template, additional folders maybe created if necessary.

When starting a new project create a folder with the corresponding alpha-code that is designated for the park. (alpha codes are four-letter abbreviations that include the first two letters of the first two words of the full park name, see page 4-13 of this document for a complete list of parks and alpha codes) Additionally create the four folders listed in the figure below .

Exhibits – only InDesign exhibit documents, InDesign library and book files.

Graphics - all graphics associated with all of the exhibits. This includes all Adobe Photoshop files (raster art) and Adobe Illustrator files (eps vector art).

Collateral - all letters, memos, and emails between park, HFC, and contractor. Also contains disk labels, plan covers, graphic catalogs and any other non-production required documentation.

Production Notes - annotated production document of the exhibits and the associated placed graphics (eps or pdf).

File Naming and Numbering

The second part of the system involves the creation of new exhibits. This section in particular was developed to be compatible with multiple-platforms and database retrieval system. It is very important this system be followed and adopted for those reasons.

Exhibit Layouts shall be created as separate InDesign documents, except in cases of modified or exact duplicate panels (described later in this document). This ensures each exhibit a separate record and a unique number. Exhibit names should include:

FIIS-01 ..... Exhibit NumberAlpha Code

The number of zero placeholders is determined by the number of total exhibits in the series. Be sure to avoid any spaces.

Exhibit numbers should follow consecutive order. When a new series of exhibits is created, the beginning number of the new series should pick up where the last series left off (please check with the division of wayside exhibits for the most up-to-date exhibit numbers before beginning a new project). This avoids different exhibits having the same exhibit number.

Exact duplicate or modified duplicate panels can have multiple numbers assigned to the same document. This includes panels that have changes due to location, such as a different you are here or different statements that refer to mileage. This is the only instance where a multiple page quark document is allowed and recommended.

Correctly labeled duplicate panels for exhibits 1, 13 and 16 for Padre Island National Seashore:

PAIS-001_013_016

Graphics

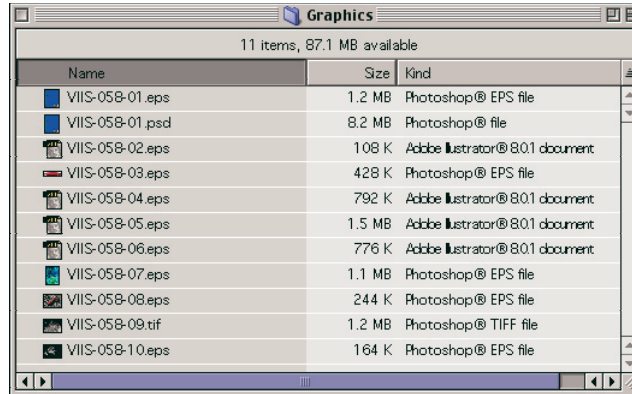

Graphic files use the same naming convention as exhibit layouts adding a graphic number. For example, all graphics used in exhibit 1 for Fire Island National Seashore would be assigned as:

Exhibit Number

FIIS-01-01.tif ..... Appropriate File Extension

Alpha CodeGraphic Number

File extensions allow for multiple file types for the same graphic as shown in figure below.

Production Notes for each exhibit are combined into a single file. The naming convention includes information on panel material, number of exhibits, and the year in which the panels were produced.

Production Notes      D-Digital, S-Screen Print, P-Porcelain
PETR-PN-15S02 ..... Production Year
Alpha Code                      Number of Exhibits

Placed graphics are labeled the same as exhibit layouts. Include file extension to avoid duplicate file names.

Collateral material can be labeled without restriction. Information of this type is used primarily by the creator and will not be archived and is not required as part of the production package unless specifically requested.
